West Sac native living his dream in music world

Martin has been 'sideman' to many greats – and has fulfilled ambition to release a record, write a book & appear in film

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A certain graduate of the Class of 1967, James Marshall High School, will return to his hometown of West Sacramento tomorrow night. He'll bring his blues harmonica and a band.

"Mick Martin and the Blues Rockers" will play in the cozy new Black Box Theater inside the city community center on Thursday evening. Martin, a West Sacramento native, told the News-Ledger he was looking forward to the visit. He said he has fond memories of his time growing up in West Sac.

Martin attended James Marshall High, precursor to the current River City High.

"I was in the first play ever produced at the school, and became famous for playing Conrad Birdie in 'Bye Bye, Birdie. West Sacramento holds a lot of wonderful memories. In high school, I started forming bands – the Beatles were on the Ed Sullivan show in 1964, and that's when it started for me. I played in the school band, and wrote for the paper there."

Martin, 62, has had an eclectic career, much of it centered around music. Saturday afternoons, he is the voice and the host behind "Mick Martin's Blues Party" on Capital Public Radio. The show can be heard over the airwaves throughout the Sacramento area (as well as Stockton, Modesto, Reno and Lake Tahoe) and it's "streamed" over the Internet to an appreciative audience elsewhere.

"A lot of people who lived in West Sacramento with me listen to us on the computer," Martin said. "We have folks in London, listening to us at 9 p.m. their time. We have people from the Yardbirds (a vintage rock group that included guitar greats Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck & Jimmy Page) listen to us."

The radio show gives Martin a chance to share his love of music – in particular, blues music and blues-influenced music. He feeds the airwaves from a large personal music collection.

"I have 10,000 CDs, at least, and I've got about 800 LP (records)," he said. "It's a no-repeat show. I don't just play my favorites over and over."

"Blues is the foundation for soul music, rockabilly, rock and roll," Martin explained.

"British blues is an interesting incarnation, like the Rolling Stones, Yardbirds and Led Zeppelin – there was no reason for them to be playing something that was an African American art form, except that they responded to it."

Martin is working with the YoloArts organization, bringing this blues passion to kids in the classroom.

"You have to approach it from the standpoint of explaining how rap, heavy metal and other forms of music relate to the blues," he said. "I teach harmonica in some of the classes. If you play harmonica for the blues, there's a magical thing about it where you can't make a mistake – you can just get better at it."

As a musician, Martin has had a lot of moments he's proud of, both inside and outside his own band. He's been "sideman" to a lot of music greats:

"I've played with Bo Diddley, with Elvin Bishop. I've played with Jimmy Smith, who basically 'invented' the organ. I got to play in London and Oxford when the scene was going really strong over there."

Martin has shared the stage at Carnegie Hall with Smith, the jazz organist, and he played the 40th anniversary Woodstock concert at Golden Gate Park with Harvey Mandel.

"Playing in front of 70,000 people is a big thrill," he recounted.

Interspersed with a music career have been a teaching career and some journalism. He earned an AA degree from Sacramento City College, and got his nose into a career reviewing movies when the now-defunct Sacramento Union offered him a chance to review a science fiction movie they didn't think was important. It was called "Star Wars."

Martin wrote the review, and continued working for the Union from 1976 to 1993.

The film review work led to the publication of "Video Movie Guide," a book he published in 1988 as an information source for movie rentals.

"It was the first book to come out and review movies available on video," he recalled.

Martin has taught journalism at the community college level. And he sounds grateful that he's accomplished so many of his life's goals.

"I never wanted to do just one thing," he said. "I've always loved music. When I was at James Marshall High School, I had a goal to write a book, make a record and be in a movie. I've done all those. I've actually had parts in several movies – in Jamie Kennedy's 'Heckler,' 'Escapes,' with Vincent Price, and in a Tim Conway comedy ("Dorf Goes Auto Racing" – Martin plays a hotel manager)... I can say that I've never truly worked a day in my life."

> 'I've played with Bo Diddley, and with Elvin Bishop.
> I've played with Jimmy Smith, who basically 'invented' the organ. I got to play in London and Oxford when the (blues) scene was going really strong over there...'

"Mick Martin & the Blues Rockers" formed in 1983, and as the name suggests, the band will rock as well as play the blues, said Martin. The lineup has evolved over the years, and he's proud that he will be bringing some original band members to West Sacramento tomorrow.

""I'm thrilled that we have what to me is the best lineup we've ever had. These are people who helped with the most important music we've had together."

The lineup includes guitarist Tim Barnes bassist Steve Schofer, organist Russ Skarsten and drummer Bruce Pressley.

Martin is lead singer, songwriter, arranger and bandleader, as well as "blues harp" player.

Coming back together with some of the original band members from past decades was easy, he said.

"It was instant," he said, "since they helped create the sound of the Blues Rockers."

And Martin's family life?

Martin is married and lives in Antelope. A 26-year old daughter is "about to make me a grandfather, in October," he reports.

His daughter is not following in his footsteps as a professional musician. And he's okay with that, because "it's easier that way."

Thursday's show is scheduled for 7-8:30 p.m. at the theater, 1075 West Capitol Avenue. It's presented by YoloArts. $5 advance donation or $7 at the door. For advance tickets, visit www.yoloarts.org/boxoffice.php, or call (530) 406-4844. For more information on Mick Martin and the Blues Rockers, visit www.mickmartinblues.com.

Woman convicted for parking lot accident

A 78-year old West Sacramento woman has been found guilty of vehicular manslaughter with gross negligence, after an incident that fatally injured a woman in the Raley's parking lot on Oct. 1, 2009.

The Yolo County District Attorney's office last week said that court evidence showed that the victim, 73-year old Jewell Mattos, left the West Sacramento store and was half-way across a crosswalk when driver Donna Marie McClure failed to brake, and hit Mattos with her car. Mattos was carried 20 to 30 feet. She was severely injured and died the next day at UC Davis Medical Center.

Prosecutor Ryan Couzens argued that McClure was negligent because she ignored warnings that she could not drive safely "because of lapses in consciousness, judgment and attention caused by chronic alcoholism," that McClure knew her license was suspended, and that there was a passenger in McClure's car who could have driven instead.

According to the D.A., McClure told police she "had too much pride to ask her friends for rides."

McClure will be sentenced on Oct.14 by Judge Timothy Fall. She faces a sentence ranging from probation to six years in state prison.

The victim's daughter was pleased with the jury's verdict on Aug. 11, according to the D.A.'s office.

"We are both thrilled and grateful at the outcome of the trial," said the daughter, Pamela Mendelsohn."

Veterans' parade

West Sacramento will host not only a "Multicultural Parade and Neighbors Fair" on Oct. 1, but also a Veterans Day Parade on Nov. 11.

Debbie Reynolds of Eskaton said her company is co-sponsring the event, planned for 2 p.m. The parade will wind from Westmore Oaks Elementary School to Sam Combs Park on Stone Blvd.

A resident of the Eskaton nursing home, 81-year old Korean War vet Oscar Calder, will hitch a ride on a three-wheeled motorbike driven by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Riders.

To participate or sponsor the parade, visit www.eskaton.org/wilson-manor/veterans-day-parade.html.

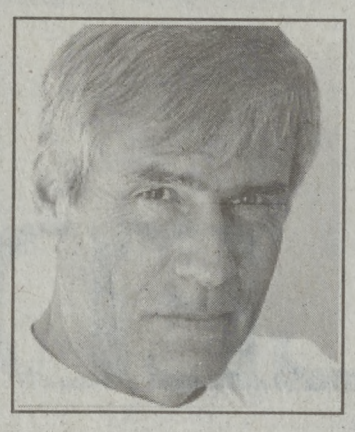
Pest control, rural-style

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

I have a friend who lives in a rural area in a lovely old Victorian home built way back in the 1920s. She loves absolutely everything about it with one small exception – the bugs which call it home, too.

"It's definitely not what you would call an air-tight house," she explained to me the other day. "All the wonderful nooks and crannies give my home a fantastic personality, but there's not a window or door in the whole house that shuts the way it should so there are always bugs of one kind or another inside the place. And I hate bugs!"

"What kind of bugs are you talking about?" I asked.

"Who cares?" she answered. "A bug is a bug, and I hate them all equally! It goes way back to my youth when all the girls back then had big hair."

"Big hair?"

"You know, the kind of hair that we teased with combs and made much bigger than it really was. The idea was the bigger your hair was, the more attractive you were -- and being the follower I was when I was a teenager, I bought into the big hair thing big time."

"But what does you having a bunch of hair have to do with you hating bugs?"

"Because bugs were always getting into my big hair and freaking me out. Now don't get me wrong. I can deal with most bugs as long as they don't get on me, but I completely lose it when they do, and that's especially true if we're talking about my hair! I guess it comes from growing up in the mountains where there weren't but maybe a half-dozen different bugs, but believe me, there were millions of each one of them. I'm talking about ants, black beetles, daddy long leg spiders, cockroaches, flies, mosquitos, wasps, and worst of all, chiggers. There were occasional other odd bugs, too, but those were pretty much the ones that kept me miserable. And my older sister was just like me, very practical about most everything else, but scared to death when it came to bugs. I can still remember the time she had cut her foot and a big brown scab had formed on it, and no sooner had she forgotten all about it when a bunch of bugs attacked our big hair out on the front porch. So we both started screaming and shaking our heads like crazy until we were sure we had gotten rid of all of them. But when my sister looked down at her bare foot, she mistook the scab on it for another big bug and about beat her poor big toe to death! And I shudder to think what might have happened if she had had a hammer or something like that in her hand."

"To tell you the truth," I said, "it's been my experience that most women aren't too fond of bugs. I remember once when my wife was getting ready to go to bed, she pulled down the sheets only to find a big brown spider staring up at her, and she screamed so loud the poor thing started running all over the place. And the next thing I knew there were pillows and covers and sheets flying all over the room as my wife desperately tried to find the darn thing. And when she couldn't, she absolutely refused to get into the bed that night and ended up sleeping out on the couch."

"Don't get me started on spiders," said my friend. "Back when I still had my big hair I had fixed this real nice guy a yummy home-cooked dinner and when he decided he wanted a soft drink to wash everything down, I went out into the garage where I had this old refrigerator where I kept all my cold drinks. As I stepped out of the kitchen into the garage I noticed a big spider web hanging down from the corner of the door frame. So I ducked down as far as I could so I wouldn't get it into my hair and thought everything was fine. I had really gone all out that night to look gorgeous, so my big hair was even bigger than usual and I guess a spider somehow jumped right down into it as I was getting that bottle of soda for my date. I didn't know it at the time, though, so I went back into the house, sat down at the dining room table, and started to finish the dinner I had slaved over all afternoon. I had only taken a few bites when all of a sudden this huge brown and black spider – which looked like it was a foot long when it dropped down out of my big hair onto my arm – scared the living daylights out of me. So, screaming like a complete idiot, I jumped up, started flailing all around, and ended up getting most of the food on the table all over my date. And as you might expect, I never got asked out by that poor guy again, which was a shame, because he was a real keeper!"

"So," I asked, "if you are so scared of bugs, what do you do about all the ones you have in your house nowadays? Do you have one of those exterminator guys come out and spray all the time?"

'All of a sudden this huge brown and black spider scared the living daylights out of me,' she said. 'So, screaming like a complete idiot, I jumped up, started flailing all around, and ended up getting most of the food on the table all over my date. And as you might expect, I never got asked out by that poor guy again.'

"No, I'm allergic to all those nasty chemicals, so I rely mostly on my house lizards."

"House lizards?"

"That's right, and there's a whole family of them, too. They actually live outside under the porch, but they pretty much come and go as they please through the little doggie door I have in my kitchen. And believe me, there is nothing better at keeping the bug population down than a family of hungry lizards."

"So," I said, still a little confused, "let me get this straight. You are scared to death of bugs, but you have no problem with lizards?"

"That's right. The adults are only about six inches long and they're really cute and colorful. And they even like to be petted now and then. And best of all, I don't have to spend so much time anymore with a fly swatter in my hand trying to beat the snot out of all the bugs in my house!"

When my friend and I finally concluded our little bug conversation, I couldn't help but think of something Jerry Seinfeld once said: "How can you hope to understand people who can pour hot wax on their legs, rip the hair out by the roots, and still be afraid of a spider?"

GUEST OPINION:

Davis, Woodland to pay for river water

Christian Sandrock, MD, MPH, YoloCounty Public Health Officer

As I watered my tomatoes, my neighbor informed me that I will not be able to afford this in the future. "We are going to pay through the nose so our city can transition from ground to surface water," he said, adding though, that our "appliances" will last longer and the "fish should feel better" when our wastewater adheres to Clean Water Act requirements. As I listened, I realized few are talking about the public health opportunity of this water project. And as I responded, he quickly replied, "this isn't Africa man; our water is just fine."

Now, he does have a point. The U.S. has the safest drinking water in the world, regardless of source. Historically, ground water provided safer drinking water than surface water as the sediment and depth of aquifers provided a natural filter. This distinction, however, has largely dissipated.

Poor well construction and both naturally-occurring and man-made contaminants in ground water have led to safety issues from a public health perspective, not only to the primary user, but also to the environment as wastewater containing high levels of salts and other contaminants are discharged to surface water. Thus we view the ground and surface water as a continuum.We focus on the ground-surface water interface, attempting to reduce contamination of both in an effort to reduce overall contamination. Reducing contamination of all water is a primary preventative public health action and is a cornerstone of the World Health Organization's water management guidelines.

The transition to surface water from the Sacramento River will provide the cities of Davis and Woodland op-

Yolo honored at state fair

From Beth Gabor
Public Affairs Manager
County of Yolo

This year, Yolo County took home the Gold Medal for its California State Fair booth in the counties' exhibit competition with the theme "This is How We Roll in Yolo."

Out of the 29 participating counties, Yolo County's unique exhibit impressed the judges with its celebration of the many roads, bike trails, famers markets, wineries, and sports and leisure activity available in Yolo County.

This year's display was made possible thanks to donations from: the Yolo County Farm Bureau; Supervisor Duane Chamberlain; River Cats Baseball; Cache Creek Casino; Whitewater Adventures; the cities of Davis, West Sacramento, Winters and Woodland; YoloArts; and the Yolo County Visitors Bureau.

"We are grateful to our generous donors who have allowed us to be represented at this year's California State Fair and to bring home the gold!" said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Matt Rexroad in a county press release. "The State Fair provides the perfect opportunity to highlight what makes Yolo County unique. We hope everyone who visits the California State Fair will venture over to explore Yolo County on our paved bike paths, via scenic byways, aboard the Sacramento River Train, on the rapids of the Cache Creek, or skydiving from the clouds. Visit Yolo County – you'll love it here!"

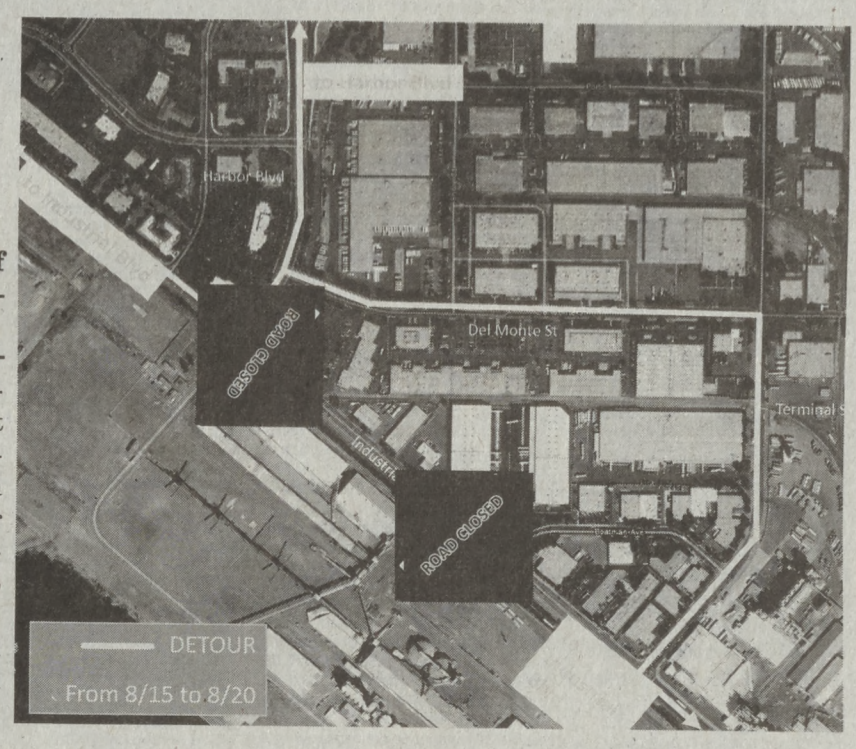
Delays & detours on Industrial Blvd.

From the City of West Sacramento



Traffic in the vicinity of the Port of West Sacramento will face a temporary detour and significant delays from Aug. 15 to Aug. 20, in conjunction with a major railroad crossing construction project. A segment of Industrial Boulevard between Harbor Boulevard east to Terminal Street will be closed in both directions that week as Union Pacific Railroad completes construction of improvements to railroad crossings. The crossing project began July 11 and the Industrial Boulevard segment is expected to complete the safety improvements by Saturday, Aug. 20.

The City of West Sacramento, which has been assisting Union Pacific in the planning of the road closures required by the railroad repairs, expects delays in the area of Harbor Boulevard and Terminal Street especially during morning and afternoon hours. Detour signs will be used to help guide traffic through the area. West Sacramento residents are advised to avoid Industrial Boulevard altogether, if possible, to reduce vehicle traffic in the area during the temporary closure.

OPINION from FACEBOOK:

Readers' thoughts on Rec Center vs. 15th St. Fitness

Last week, the News-Ledger reported that the 15th Street Fitness Center, a private gym, closed its doors. The gym's ownership blamed both the economy and competition from the city-owned Recreation Center in Southport.

About 500 people "like" the News-Ledger's Facebook page on the Internet. So at the News-Ledger's Facebook page, we asked the public this question: "Was the city right to open the Rec Center for local residents? Or was it wrong to build a gym and compete with a private company?

Here are most of the replies we received in that discussion. If you're not used to "Internet slang," it might be helpful to know that the combination of punctuation that looks like this: is a sideways "smiley face," often meant to lighten up the mood of a comment:

Jenni Zimmerman Yarwood: Honestly, I would take 15th Street Fitness over the Rec Center any day. 15th Street was more organized, more personal, the atmosphere felt more inviting and comfortable and it was definitely more affordable. :) I think it's kind of sad that the city of West Sac is all about promoting and supporting smaller type businesses but then they go and build a gigantic, overpriced and commercialized type gym to put the little guy out of business. Just my opinion though. :)

Dawn Tytler Gaines-Gagnon: A fitness center at the city Recreation Center is available to more people than a private center. I am sorry to see a business close, but if more people have access to the equipment, you have a healthier community, and that is more important.

Carrie Fisher Stone: Both have their advantages... We like the rec center for its family offerings and pool, but my husband enjoyed working out more at 15th street - it had equipment that the rec center doesn't, no wait time for machines, and was affordable. We were very sad to see it close!

Russ Johnson: I love to swim but when you also see how many children are enjoying the pool, rock climbing, ping pong etc there is no doubt in my mind whatsoever that the city made the right decision. This facility serves far more denizens and is for all ages.

Eve Westvik: I figured this would be the outcome for 15th Street Fitness once the city opened its facilities. I don't see why taxpayers should be subsidizing a facility that not everyone wants to use or can even get to easily. A city shouldn't be providing unfair competition to private business. While I believe public facilities have their purpose, they shouldn't conflict with private enterprises. Once again, we end up with an empty storefront and more people out of work. I'm sure the mayor is oh so proud of himself and his accomplishments, but I think it's his job to encourage private enterprise to the area, not have city taxpayers pay for it.

Russ Johnson: How many employees does the Rec center employ vs. gym? The employment argument is not relevant but your taxpayer one is. That said there will never be a service that eveyone uses or even wants to use. The rec center serves a greater good and need. I suppose many Curmudgeons rather see our youth opening up fire hydrants on 100 degree days like they do in the Bronx.

Maureen Hussein Pascoe: 15th Street offered nothing for kids older than toddlers.

Eve Westvik: This is not a question of one gym versus the other. There's a bigger issue here. Actually, it is a relavant employment issue if taxpayers are paying those salaries. Public jobs cost us money; private jobs contirbute to the tax base. A private business is paying business license fees and taxes as well. Is the city facility fully self supporting? I doubt it. Are these contract employees or city employees with city benefits? I don't know. Someone enlighten me. Why couldn't the city encourage or contract with a private venture to provide the same thing? It would likely be cheaper, but at the very least, those who use it would pay for it. How much did developers in Southport pay the city for the privilege of making bundles of money on homes that people are now losing? Did they contribute much to the building of these facilities? I surely hope they did. Name calling is also not necessary.

Efrain-Carly Cornejo: As a resident of the Southport area, the Rec Center services my needs. I'm not interested in driving up to 15th St. If the city feels they can open an revenue stream by opening a business (and the money going into services for W. Sac residents) so be it. If Gold's Gym opened up a block from my house, I would join Gold's.

Lennie Gladue: Both locations had their pros and cons. Whether or not the rec center lead to 15th Str closing can be debated with no clear conclusion other than it sure did not help. Many independent fitness clubs have closed over the past couple years; that business has always been pretty brutal.

Should the city be delving into areas that can be serviced by the private sector? I dont' think so but I didn't see anyone else opening a pool or a gym either.

Anyway you look at it, the city lost another business, the citizens have less options and the rec center will become more crowded or people will just drive to Natomas to the California Family Fitness.

Matthew Hargrove: I love the Rec Center, it has provided many hours of fun, entertainment, child care, competition, and employment for someone in my family. When the West Sac Swim Team hosts teams from other cities I am proud to have them here and happy to hear the accolades of how far our city has come — and to see them spend money at the Southport Shopping Centers. Lots of cities have public facilities like the Rec Center...they are part of a healthy community and a good Parks and Rec system. The staff there is also great...many of them West Sacramento natives. Other gyms in West Sac have continued to do well despite the Rec Center opening so wonder if there were any other issues at play. I with 15th Street Market was still in that location to tell the truth...they had one of the best beer selections around...

Cynthia 'Cindi' Islas: To me, the sad thing is that 15th street was more accessible than the rec center for people that couldn't make it all the way out to Southport. I was deeply dismayed when it was built out there in the 'pretty part of town' because West Sacto is not JUST Southport. It's Broderick, Bryte and West Sacramento combined and on the older side of town, we have nothing being built for all citizens of WS to enjoy. The rec center is crowded and for the older crowd, not yet retired, but no longer raising children, it's not enjoyable to go workout with a bunch of kids. Very sad to see 15th street it go. They've arranged for a gym in Davis to pick up the membership. Very inconvenient.

Darcy Cooper Hargrove: There is Muscle Systems on the other side of town. And as far as things being built on that side, we do have city college, city hall, the community center, the library, And the farmer's market. The city was very considerate of the gyms in town when planning what they would include at the Rec Center. They have fewer free weights to accommodate Muscle Systems. They do not have spin classes to allow that advantage for 15th Street. The city also offered a dual membership to both 15th and the Rec Center, which gave almost all of the membership money to 15th.

Thomas Guy Farley: What other businesses should the city be allowed to operate? A bowling alley?, a mower shop?, a car wash? What are the limits and who sets them?

Jenni Zimmerman Yarwood: Some of you have made good points on here about both gyms and everyone certainly has a right to their own opinion without name calling and bashing the other person who perhaps enjoyed/enjoys one over the other. Yes, the big rec center has swimming, which is great for a family and for hosting the West Sac Dolphins and it does offer some great classes. However, the price of $45 per month is too steep for some people and 15th Street Fitness was more affordable and within walking distance to the State Steet homes. It is sad to see it go and personally I can't afford the prices of the big city gym so the only option for me and my family will be working out and getting healthy on our own. :)

Cynthia 'Cindi' Islas: I'm talking about for the young kids. They have nothing on that side and it's a sad commentary that all of the admin is on West Capitol but go two blocks down and West Capital and Merkeley, near Poplar and on down look terrible. Empty, weed filled lots, dirty, old run down motels with sofas and tent like things all outside. They closed the pool at the old Golden State, the kids can't even swim on their side of town.

portunity to improve our wastewater, better protect the waters of the Delta and meet the standards of the Clean Water Act.

(Editor's note: West Sacramento already draws its drinking water from the Sacramento River.)

This improved wastewater discharge will reduce overall water contamination and allow natural filters to clean our water. This level of prevention is the first and primary step in any public health program.

Besides improved wastewater, we must also remove contaminants from the start. Current water management generally consists of testing drinking water as it moves from source to consumerfor micro-organisms, organic and inorganic chemicals, and disinfectants and their byproducts. If a contaminant is above public health standards, we intervene to lessen its concentration. This type of water management, however, is secondary.

With the transition to surface water, we now have opportunity to provide primary prevention, removing all contaminants to low levels from the start, and thereby using testing to evaluate our program. Hexavalent chromium, for example, is a common contaminant of ground and surface water and has been linked to a number of cancers. It is less common in surface water, therefore removal of this contaminant will become easier, and potentially less costly, by taking this preventative approach.

Finally, we can add compounds for public health prevention. The classic additive is fluoride, providing dental care to the population at one source rather than household by household. Water fluoridation has been a cornerstone of public health for decades, and recent guidelines from the Centers for Disease Control reaffirm the benefit of community water fluoridation for widespread prevention at a single source.

By now, my neighbor looks intrigued but not convinced of my perspective. "I would really rather not pay more for this," he says, "but I can see your point. I would rather pay the increased rates now than my root canal or chemotherapy down the road." Could not have said it better myself.

Letters to the Editor

Build a parking garage

Recently, I read that Yolo Bus is going to receive over a million dollars for public transportation improvements in Yolo County from a federal grant.

A good suggestion would be to use much of the money to create a 5-story parking lot close to the transit center on West Capitol Avenue and Merkley Avenue. There are empty lots close to the West Sacramento City College campus, or perhaps we could build on the corner of Jefferson Boulevard and West Capitol Avenue. The old Block Buster building is being torn down.

Maybe we could collaborate with the City of West Sacramento and Yolo Bus. More parking would create more ridership for Yolo Bus as people could park near City Hall to ride to work in Sacramento without having to pay for parking as well as other clients.

Singers, unite!

The Fall 2011 season for the West Sacramento Community Singers will soon be underway. The group is eager to get the show on the road!

2011 hallmarks the group's second year of existence. While we are still in baby-steps mode, we are making progress in becoming a more established entity. Our activites to date include a membership drive/open house in January, sponsorship drive in the spring, yard sale fund raiser in April, performances in December and May, group night out at Vince's Ristorante in June, pizza night fund-raiser in July, and summer rehearsals for Elks Club event.

Plans for this fall include finding new venues at which to perform. We have been invited to sing at the West Sacramento Library in November and we hope to sing at the West Sac Christmas Tree lighting after Thanksgiving. 2011 fund raising efforts may include a wine-tasting event!

In 2010, participation hovered at 18 members. It would be great if the participation increased to over 20 in 2011, so all of you budding singers out there please seriously consider joining the group in the coming year. Be assured that you will have a lot of fun in a non-threatening and supportive environment! You will also become better singers!

To keep participation affordable, dues will be collected on a sliding scale, with the minimum set at $60 - that is $3.75 a week, which seems a pretty good bargain! Those who can afford to pay beyond the minimum are encouraged to do so. Our first rehearsal is Sunday, Sept 4th, which falls on Labor Day week-end - not the best date, but starting earlier or later was not an option. At our first rehearsal, we will welcome new participants, collect registration forms and dues, discuss the fall program and probably sing a few songs.

Anyone interested in joining can go to http://www.meetup.com/West-Sacramento-Community-Singers/ or email westsacsingers@gmail.com.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

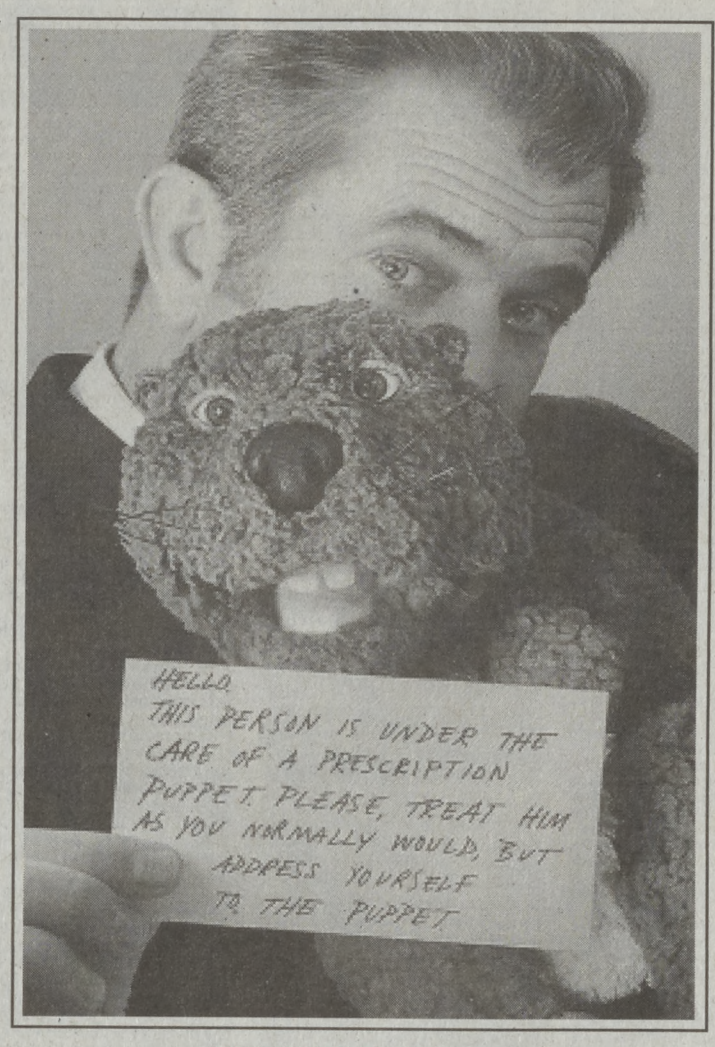
EDITOR'S NOTE: DVDs reviewed in this column will be available in stores the week of Aug. 22, 2011.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Troll Hunter" (PG-13) -- This documentary-style adventure into the remote lands of Norway brings a group of intrepid students face to face with Scandinavian mythology. A series of strange bear attacks pull a group of young Norwegians and their handheld cameras into the snowy fjords to find a strange old hunter who reveals the truth -- hill trolls, forest trolls and their legendary kin are the real culprits.

Well aware of the silliness of it all, "Troll Hunters" uses bits and pieces of real folklore to craft a story that has both laughs and unexpected thrills. The special effects are impeccable, bringing the goofy and grotesque giants to life as they run from sunlight and chase the heroes through the tundra.

"Win Win" (R) -- A suburban father (Paul Giamatti) is struggling with his law practice, money issues and his home while the high-school wrestling team he coaches seems incapable of winning anything. Just when he thinks he's found a way around his troubles, the teenage grandson of one of his clients shows up at his door with nowhere to go.



MEL GIBSON & friend

Writer/director Thomas McCarthy proves his ability to put quietly funny and wonderfully complicated characters on the screen. The movie is at many points tender and absurd, sad and comforting -- and always giving an authentic feel to the action.

"The Beaver" (PG-13) -- Jodie Foster directs and co-stars in this notably odd dramedy. Walter Black (Mel Gibson) is a husband, father and toy executive who suffers from crippling depression. As his life crumbles, Walter finds a beaver hand puppet in a dumpster and begins to speak through it in a British accent. Never quite sure how sad, serious or funny it wants to be, "The Beaver" can charm audiences then leave them feeling a bit uncomfortable.

Foster's direction give takes a straightforward look at the situation, and Gibson's performance ups the ante with all the inner-turmoil and outward weariness he can muster. (He can muster a lot.) Some may find the film the perfect balance of light and dark, while others might find it to be a confused and simplified look at mental illness.

"Secret Sunshine" (2007) [Criterion Collection] -- This highly original Korean drama takes a deep journey into grief and individualism -- all navigated by an award-winning performance (the 2007 Cannes Best Actress for Jeon Do-Yeon). Though it's only a few years old, the film is getting a wider re-release as part of the Criterion Collection for its tough -- not melodramatic -- story and performances.

"Sex on the Moon: The Amazing Story Behind the Most Audacious Heist in History" by Ben Mezrich (Doubleday, $26.95)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Thad Roberts was an undergrad at the University of Utah in 1997. Floundering with no sense of direction, he was disowned by his parents and removed from the Mormon Training Center after admitting to the mission president that he had had sex with his girlfriend. In debt and facing a bleak future, Roberts attended a career center at the school -- an event that changed his life. As improbable as it might seem, Roberts decided on the spot that he wanted to be an astronaut and spent the next two years taking physics, geology and anthropology classes.

He landed a job interview at the Johnson Space Center in Texas, and against all odds was accepted into one of its intern programs, then drafted to help with a moon rocks sample verification project inside the lunar lab at NASA. Roberts was amazed to hear that a single gram of moon rock brought back from the Apollo missions was worth $5 million. He hooked up with NASA intern Rebecca and began formulating a plan to steal about 2 percent of the moon rock collection, or about 17 pounds. At 453 grams to a pound, his haul would be worth an astonishing $40 billion.

With a little help from friends, Roberts managed to make off with some of the moon rocks and hid them under a mattress so he and Rebecca could have "sex on the moon." An FBI sting helped bring the moon rock caper to an end, netting Roberts not millions, but rather 100 months in a federal prison.

Ben Mezrich, The New York Times bestselling author of "The Accidental Billionaires," has written a tale with more twists and turns than even the best of fiction. How Roberts put his plan into action and eventually got caught make for one of the most riveting books of the summer.

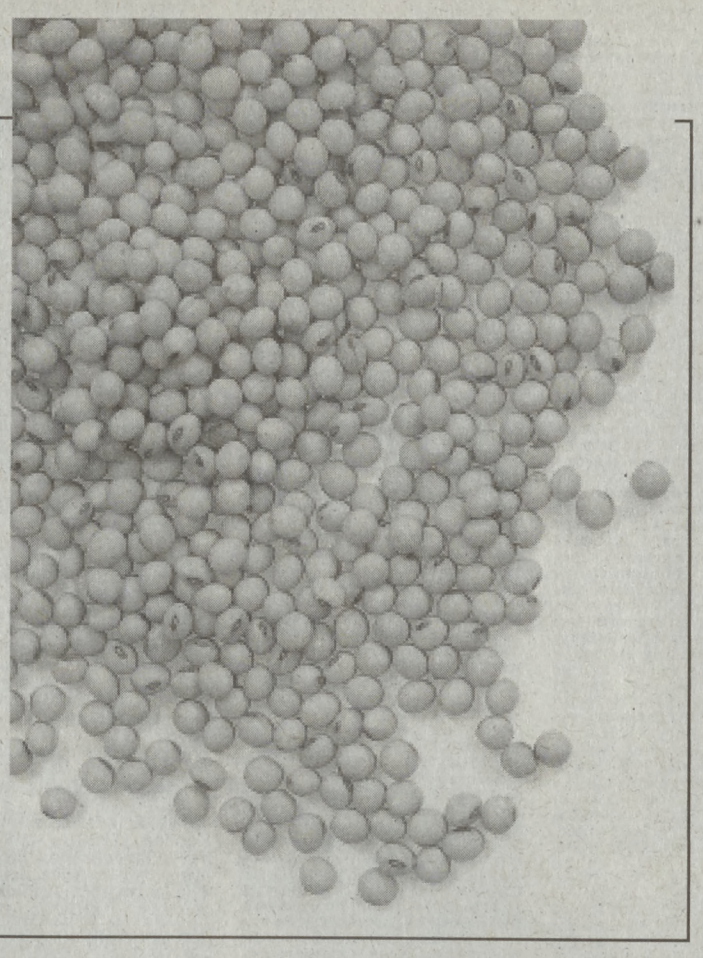
Spicy Soybeans Make a Healthy Snack



Roasted soybeans (also known as soynuts) are a healthy and versatile snack, and a much better option than chips or crackers. A 1/4 cup serving of unsalted, roasted soynuts has 130 calories. It contains 6 grams of fat -- 1 gram of which is saturated -- 9 grams of carbohydrate, 2 grams of fiber and 11 grams of protein. There is no trans fat, cholesterol, salt or sugar.

Soybeans have been shown in hundreds of studies to help prevent heart disease and several forms of cancer. Stick to no more than a one-ounce, 120-calorie snack, as two or three ounces daily are too fattening.

Roasting and flavoring dry soybeans at home, using the recipes below, allows you to control the salt and add the flavors of your choice.

Start with the basic roasted soybean procedures listed and then get creative with your flavorings. I've provided tips about how to roast dry soybeans and ways you can add spices to coat the beans with flavor. The next time you want a snack, reach for the roasted soybeans, and don't spare the spice mixes!

ROASTED SOYBEANS

Roasted soybeans can be used in salads for texture, added to trail mixes or eaten alone for a snack. To add a little more flavor after roasting, use the following spice mixes to add a kick to your roasted soybeans.

4 cups whole dry soybeans
Cooking oil spray

1. Rinse soybeans in a colander under cool water to clean. Fill a large bowl with cool water and then soak the soybeans at least 8 hours.

2. Pour the soybeans into a colander and rinse again under cool running water. Shake off the excess water, and set soybeans aside to drain completely.

3. Preheat oven to 350 F. Spray 2 large, rimmed baking sheets with cooking oil. Spread two cups of the soaked beans into single layer on each baking sheet. Bake for 15 minutes, and then spray the soybeans with the cooking-oil spray. Stir and continue to bake, stirring every 5 minutes until golden brown and crunchy. The total roasting time will vary depending on the moisture of the beans, but should take about 25 to 35 minutes.

4. Remove roasted nuts from the oven to cool. Store nuts in an airtight container for up to 4 weeks. Makes about 2 cups, roughly 1/2 cup of roasted soybeans for each cup of dry beans

CAJUN FLAVORED

2 tablespoons Cajun spice mix

RANCH FLAVORED

1 package Ranch Dressing mix

Place soybeans in a small re-sealable bag. Sprinkle with Cajun spice mix or dry ranch dressing. Shake bag, then spray lightly with oil, shake bag again, and repeat process until nuts are fully coated. Store in a tightly covered container.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

Caramelized Onion and Goat Cheese Panini

Don't reserve the grill just for dinner. Assemble these delicious appetizer paninis and make them hot and crunchy on the grill.

2 tablespoons olive oil
2 (1 pound each) sweet onions, thinly sliced
Salt and pepper
1/2 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme leaves
8 (1/2-inch thick) center slices country-style bread
4 ounces soft fresh goat cheese

1. In nonstick 12-inch skillet, heat oil on medium one minute. Stir in onions, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper; cover and cook 15 minutes or until very soft, stirring occasionally. Uncover and cook 15 to 25 minutes longer or until onions are golden brown, stirring frequently. Stir in thyme; remove pan from heat.

2. Prepare outdoor grill for direct grilling on medium.

3. Meanwhile, assemble panini: Place 4 slices bread on work surface. Spread one-fourth of goat cheese on each slice and top with one-fourth of onion mixture. Top with remaining bread slices.

4. Place 2 panini on hot grill grate. Place heavy skillet (preferably cast iron) on top of panini, press down, and cook 7 to 8 minutes or until bread is toasted and browned on both sides, turning over once. Repeat with remaining two panini. Cut in halves or quarters to serve. Makes 8 appetizer servings.
